FORMER SECRETARY OF NAVY
JOHN D. LONG IS DEAD

Hingham, Mass., Aug. 29.—John D. Long, former secretary of the navy and former governor of Massachusetts, died at his home here Saturday night.

John D. Long was secretary of the navy during the Spanish-American war.

Mr. Long was called to head the navy department when President McKinley took office in March, 1897, and also served a year in the cabinet of President Roosevelt.

Refused to Resign.

Rumors of his resignation were frequent during the Roosevelt-Hayden controversy, when Mr. Long was accused of unduly favoring Hayden, but he declared he would not resign "under fire," and retained his position until 1902, when he was much affected by the death of his daughter and his own ill health.

In accepting his resignation President Roosevelt wrote:

"It has never been my good fortune to be associated with any public man more single-minded in his devotion to the public interest."

In addition to directing the navy during the war with Spain, the official acts of Secretary Long included the placing of thousands of navy employees under the civil service rules, and the prohibition of the sale of beer on naval vessels.

Entered by McKinley.

John Davis Long was born in Buckfield, Maine, in 1822, the son of a prosperous business man, but his own predilection was for law and politics.

Settled in Boston after his graduation from Harvard, he served four terms in the state legislature, was three terms speaker of the house, was lieutenant governor and in 1879 defeated General Benjamin F. Butler, the democratic candidate for governor, by a plurality of 13,000. He was twice re-elected with large pluralities, and sent to congress for three terms.

There he formed a warm personal regard for McKinley.

In 1864 he made a strong speech, nominating Senator George P. Edmunds of Vermont for president in the republican national convention. He was one of the most polished debaters in congress, his speeches being noted for their literary excellence and a dry humor which made him popular.

MILITARY AND NAVAL PREPAR-
EDNESS OF U. S.GOVERNOR DUNNE OF ILLINOIS
ADDRESSING GOVERNORS' CON-FERENCE AT BOSTON, ADVOC-ATES ITS NEED.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 28.—Governor Edward P. Dunne, of Illinois, advised greater military and naval preparedness in his address at the governors' conference in part Governor Dunne said:

"Since the commencement of the tremendous war now waging in Europe and the danger of our country being embroiled therein, all classes of people in the republic have been seriously considering the unpreparedness for war which seems to exist in our country."

"If war were to be declared against this country by one of the six great nations of Europe it must be conceded that the United States in its present condition of land and naval forces would be in a sorry predicament. For offensive warfare our land forces are so small as to be regarded with ridicule. Our naval armament might succeed for a time in damaging cities and fortifications upon the coast of a possible enemy in Europe, but separated so far as we would be from the base of supplies, such offensive naval warfare could not be of lasting duration."

"In defensive naval warfare, we might for a time make a creditable showing upon our own coast; but if any of these great nations should effect a landing of any considerable army, for weeks at least such an invasion would be unopposed. This serious situation of affairs has given even the most ardent advocate of peace grave concern."

"The present militia of all the states of the United States is wholly inadequate for the defense of the nation. In 1913, the total militia of the National Guards of all the states aggregated approximately one hundred and twenty thousand men. Such a number of men would be wholly inadequate for the defense of the nation in case of war with any first-class power."

"To rely upon the regular army of one hundred thousand men, and a militia of one hundred and twenty thousand men, war with a first-class power would be an act of supreme folly. The citizen-soldier of the republic must be reorganized, regenerated and enormously increased. There should be at least a body of citizen-soldiers trained to the use of arms, organized and maintained throughout the different states of the United States in the aggregate of at least two million men. How can this be accomplished without imposing too great a hardship upon its members and upon the taxpayers of the nation? It can be accomplished by the adoption of two measures."

"First: By requiring every college and university in the United States which receives from any state or from the federal government any support or appropriation of money, to give a military training to its students during the four years of the university or college course. As part of the physical and mental education of the student, he should be compelled, if in such an institution, as part of his curriculum, to devote sufficient time to enable him to become a well-informed soldier in time of war. That this can easily be accomplished is proven by what has already been accomplished in some of the universities."

"One of the greatest needs of the British and Russian armies at the present time is their need of trained officers to take charge of the enlisted men. We should profit by the examples furnished in this awful war now prevailing in Europe. For defensive purposes at least we should have an adequate number of well-drilled men, graduates of our educational institutions, who could, in case of war, take charge of and whip into shape the soldiers who would fly to the defense of their country's integrity."

"Another method of increasing the numbers and efficiency of our state militia would be for the federal government to make more liberal appropriations for the maintenance of the same. On the average the militiaman of Illinois does not receive to exceed fifteen dollars a year, and that only when he is in active service."

"This haggard allowance is not attractive to the ordinary farmer, mechanic or clerk."

"All of this should be changed. If a militiaman were paid one dollar for every night he spent in military train-

PAN-AMERICAN
GOOD ROADS
CONGRESSDELEGATE HAS BEEN INVITED
FROM THIS CITY—SMALL ARD-MORE HAVE DELEGATE AT OAKLAND

The Pan-American Good Roads Congress, which meets at Oakland, Cal., next month, promises to be the biggest event of the kind ever attempted in the United States, and from present indications, representative good roads boosters from all over the western hemisphere will be there to exchange ideas and promote deeper interest in better highways.

Col. Sidney Suggs, who has done more than any other man in this section of the United States to promote good roads, has been invited as a delegate and will probably attend. The following letter from Oakland was received this morning:

"Oakland, Cal., Aug. 25, 1915."

"Mr. Sidney Suggs,"

"Oklahoma City, Okla."

"Dear Sir:—We understand that you have been appointed a delegate to the Pan-American Road Congress, meeting in Oakland, September 13, and trust that you will arrange to join the Pan-American Road Congress Special described on page 3 of the advance program, enclosed herewith."

"Governor Charles W. Gates and Mr. Jas. H. McDonald will represent the executive committee and have reserved places on this train. We anticipate a very representative party from all sections of the country and believe that you will find this an unusual opportunity not only to have a very interesting trip through the scenic west but to spend ten days with the leading men of the country interested in the 'good roads' movement."

"We shall be very glad to reserve accommodation in accordance with our itinerary and suggest that you let us hear from you by telegraph, stating how many berths you desire to reserve. We shall be pleased to have ladies in the party, and in fact any of your friends who may wish to go with you."

"Very truly yours,"

"J. HOWARD EAGER & CO.,

"Per J. Howard Eager."

Aims and Objects.

The principal object of the Pan-American Road Congress will be to bring together into one great convention those from all parts of the United States, Canada, Central and South America, who are interested in the subject of highway and street improvement. Among the delegates who will attend will be the men who are universally recognized as the leading authorities on the administration, construction, repair and maintenance of roads and streets. These men will present papers and will discuss important phases of paving and road making. Those who attend will not only have the privilege of hearing the papers and discussions, but everyone in attendance will be welcomed to take part in the discussion. Every person interested in any phase of highway improvement will be cordially received.

Delegates.

The congress will include official delegates from the United States government and those designated as such by foreign governments, by the governors of the various states of the union, by the mayors of cities, by the county commissioners of various counties, by educational institutions, and by organizations interested in highway improvement.

Official delegates will be entitled to participate in the deliberations of the congress and to enjoy all the privileges of the members of the congress.

ing in his drill hall or arsenal with a provision that he would receive no compensation unless he attended at least forty nights during the year. I believe that instead of 150,000 militiamen we would have 1,500,000 or 2,000,000."
